

Kitchen remodel checklist.

What to do first — in the order that actually helps.

Most kitchen projects stall in the same place: too many decisions and no obvious starting point. This is the sequence we walk clients through. Work down it in order and each step narrows the next one, so by the time you sit down with a designer the hard thinking is already done.

- ☐ Set a working budget. A range is fine this early — it shapes every decision that follows.
- ☐ Write down your priorities. Start with what is not working now: storage, traffic, light, prep space.
- ☐ Take rough measurements. Use our Measure Your Space guide. Your designer confirms on site, but rough numbers sharpen the first conversation.
- ☐ Find your door style. Browse Cava, Slim Cava, Finger Pull, Flatte and Mallorca, and order samples — screens lie about finish.
- ☐ Collect inspiration. Save images anywhere you like. Patterns emerge from a pile of pictures faster than from opinions.
- ☐ Think through appliances. Your layout is built around them: how many, what size, what fuel.
- ☐ Choose your materials. Countertops, flooring and cabinetry carry the room. See samples in the actual space, day and night.
- ☐ Get a free price estimate. A few questions gives you a realistic range before you commit.
- ☐ Book a design session. Lay the space out with a designer module by module — every cabinet, every finish, every pull.
- ☐ Line up your installer. Match with a certified professional through our trade network, and book early.
- ☐ Confirm your production window. Once approved, your order is built to spec and delivered straight to the jobsite.
- ☐ Prepare for delivery. Clear a staging area and plan how you will cook during the work.

Questions as you work through it? Talk to a Lioher designer — that is what we are here for.